In printing the list of the members of the State Central Committee of the Silver party a few days ago, the name of John Wagner of Ormsby should have been omitted as Mr. Wagner tendered his resignation as a member of the Committee in August, 1892, and the same was at that time accepted, but in some way was not erased from the roll, hence the mistake.—Silver State.

Riots in Ohio.

Cleveland, May 3.—The riotous demonstrations by the unemployed yesterday continued today. Seven thousand men invaded the manufacturing districts. They drove the workmen from the Standard Paint Works and smashed the windows of the Variety Iron Works. They then attacked the Upton Nut Works and badly wrecked it. Thirty-five policemen who took possession of the building were pelted in by the mob for some time, but finally were released by a re-enforcement of officers. The mob then wrecked the furniture of the factory and were about looting it when officers arrived and dispersed them. A number of rioters were arrested and many were injured in the affray.

Cleveland, O., May 3.—The Cleveland Grays has just been ordered to assemble at their armory to be ready to help the police to maintain the peace.

A SUICIDE.

W. E. Hazen Ends his Career with a Pistol.

Parties in the vicinity of the Arlington Hotel were startled by a pistol shot shortly before 12 o'clock Wednesday night. A noise on the porch of the hotel directed attention to that spot. Upon investigation it was discovered that W. E. Hazen, who has been in Carson for some time as Examiner of the U. S. Department of Justice, had shot himself in the right temple with a Smith & Wesson 38 calibre 5-shooter, dying in a few moments.

Coroner Ellis was immediately notified. Upon investigation he found on the bed of the dead man a number of letters, papers and poems, the latter all being in a despondent strain.

One letter was addressed to his son Harry, one to U. S. Marshal Humphreys, in which he asked Humphreys to give his son a job, one to T. D. Edwards, one to Mr. Stein of the Arlington, and one sealed in an official envelope and addressed to Frank Strong, General Agent of the Department of Justice, Washington, D. C.

The following note addressed to his son explains his motive, and probably refers to his dead wife:

HARRY:—I can't keep my promise to resume life, it is all too cheerless, and while I love you very much, yet I want to leave all behind and commence anew in another world. You can tell inquisitive acquaintances that it was not a matter of "temporary insanity," "mental aberration," "momentary despondency," "alcoholism," "drunken frenzy," or any of those usual assigned reasons. You know, long before I died, I have since lived (under protest) because I liked you.

Your father,
W. E. HAZEN.

The letter to Mr. Stein stated in effect that his son would settle all bills, and also said that he "intended going via Lake Tahoe," that his son had dissuaded him, but that he "could go no further." From the following poem found in a coat pocket of the deceased it is evident that he referred in this letter to his intention of drowning himself in Lake Tahoe. The poem was headed "Tahoe Gives Not up the Dead."

Others have praised thy beauteous tints,
Which with Niagara's rainbows vie,
Others have praised thy crystal depths,
In which thy grander glories lie.
In praise of prose, in ode, in song,
Thy every charm has been portrayed.
The camera's light, the artist's skill,
Have to thee highest tribute paid.
Too perfect thou in Nature's sight,
In size and symmetry of form,
For Summer's sun to make thee less,
Or show the force of rain or storm,
And Nature's edict has forbid
King Frost to breathe on thee so chill,
As o'er to fetter the free waves,
That rise to billows at her will.
I grant thee each and every charm,
That ever in thy praise was said,
Yet this to me is more than all—
Lake Tahoe gives not up the dead.

Guard me, fair Tahoe, let me rest,
With thy blue waters o'er my head,
Grant me my wish to with thee stay,
Dear Tahoe give not up the dead,
But let thy waves a requiem sing,
No funeral rite be o'er me said.
To thy charm I homage pay,
Lake Tahoe gives not up the dead.

Deceased left the following letter for publication:

E. Hazen was born in Cleveland N. Y. 1833 and has held many positions of responsibility and trust. In 1889, he accepted a Government position as Examiner of the U. S. Department of Justice to give his invalid wife the benefit of a change of climate. She died in January of this year. To his nearest friends only was it known that Hazen was of a despondent nature, as he was over genial and apparently happy. He had some literary talent, and leaves a wide circle of friendly acquaintances in forty different States. His record with the U. S. Department of Justice is above reproach, and he and his esteemed tutor, J. W. Nightingale were the only ones not removed at the change of administration. It is probable he could have remained in the position he occupied for many years had he not chosen to resign his position with the world.

Coroner Ellis and the following jury—Joe Muller, Chris Guler, E. Mayo, J. Furlong and Frank Helm—held an inquest at 10 a. m. yesterday. The following witnesses were examined: Drs. Guinan and Herrick, S. Summerfield, Dan Sheehan and I. Stein.

The verdict was in accordance with the above facts, the jury finding that deceased was a native of Cleveland, Oneida county, New York; aged 41 years and that he came to his death in Carson on May 2, 1894, from a pistol wound, self-inflicted with suicidal intent.

Having Fun.

The other morning Johnny Meyers, who is well known as a practical joker, swiped a pail of milk from the residence of James Logan, the blacksmith, making the same up into milk punches at his saloon.

Meyers thought it was a huge joke and treated several times, he felt so good. In fact it was such a lot of fun, that he concluded it was too much fun for one man, and decided to take a partner in the fun he was going to have with Logan. Well, he outlined a little scheme to Henry Woods, who agreed to stand in. Accordingly they went down to Logan's house yesterday morning, with the intention of bombarding the latter's house with stones, Meyers laughing uproariously all the way down, at the very anticipation of pleasure. Logan sleeps late when he is not working.

Meyers and Woods got behind a fence and began to carry out their part of the program. Logan awoke located the pair, dressed and sneaked out quietly behind a shed, and began to carry out a part of the program which was "not on the bills."

He heaved a large rock over the fence, which striking Meyers on the foot, bruised that member in such a manner that he was carried home on a stretcher, put to bed and Dr. Guinan summoned.

Guinan's bill was $2.50, and Meyers says it is a "h—l of a town where you have to make your own fun and pay for it."

There is no ill feeling in the matter, however, as all hands are the best of friends. Next time J. Meyers, practical joker, has fun, he will do it by telephone.

A Novel Boat.

Harry Brown is having a novel boat made at Stewart's plumbing shop. It consists of two galvanized iron cylinders, 16 feet long, 12 inches in diameter, pointed at both ends. They will be placed parallel, and the motive power will be a paddle wheel between the two, run by foot power in the manner of a bicycle, which is just in Harry's line. He expects to attain a speed of from eight to ten miles per hour, which is more than double that of an ordinary row boat.

The Weiland Saloon.

W. Whitney has assumed control of the Weiland saloon, which he proposes to run strictly up to the times. He will dispense the best liquors and cigars and fine old Glenlivet whiskey, which slides down your throat like oil, tickling your palate meanwhile. Call and see "Handsome Whit."
